Twitter: Warwick Office closed. 100% functional in new digs. CapacityWare Software Upgrade visits underway. Excellent feedback from blogs. FUN!

Office Move: Well, it's official - the office move is now 100% out and 50% in. We're totally functional but not everything is properly placed as yet. Then again, it's been a couple of decades since everything was fully in its place.

Upgrade Visits: We're slowly scheduling visits to all the CapacityWare™ Software users with upgraded software and some light instruction on how to use system features, if needed. We'll soon have links to downloadable instructions on how to perform simple, but often overlooked tasks for those who might need step-by-step help.

RoadShow Event: Early next month we'll be doing three days in Fredericksburg at a tri-state conference - Workshop and Exhibit. Our presentation is titled, "Leadership + Followership = Organization Capacity" - a topic that seems to draw attention. The approach takes a systemic (od - organization development as a verb) look at the creation of capacity rather than the more traditional view which seems to just place disproportionate burden on top positions.

RoadShowCase: We're in the preliminary planning stages of a south-central Pennsylvania week-long event(s) focused on local government workforce development alternatives using the RGB as a foundational multiplier. This seems to be an essential topic in light of budget cutbacks and personnel shifts. If you have someone we ought to connect with in a collaborative way, please, let us know.

Settling In: We're back to having fun again! The Internet advances made (everywhere, anytime, everybody) as a result of the July 2010 Angela's luncheon meeting has pumped innovation and spirit into our routine to make it exciting all over again.
